BEDWORTH CONGRESS.

The 20th Annual Bedworth Congress held in November attracted a record entry this year. At a time when there is a fall nationally in the number of congress entries following the surge of interest in the 1970's, the 5 junior sections were again well supported.

Derek Evans, the Congress Organiser is also a Regional Organiser in the junior training programme being developed by the B.C.F. and the Bedworth Congress provides juniors with the opportunity to play against strong opposition.

In the senior sections, the Candidates U.170 Tournament resulted in a four way tie, but the U.130 Major Tournament was won outright by A.B.C. Smith of Cannock Chess Club with a score of 5½/6.

Juniors

The B.C.F. have completed a network of Regional Coaching Centres throughout the country, designed to give equal opportunities to all promising Juniors. Anyone interested in helping Juniors is advised to take full advantage of this scheme by contacting Union Junior Organisers or by writing or telephoning me:- Derek Evans (N.J.T.C.) 47, Dalehouse Lane, Kenilworth CV8 2EP. Phone 0926.58500.

Letters to the Editor

In my letter to you of 21.10.81 I wrote "Of course you have set yourself a standard!" So in order to help you (I hope) may I please make the following suggestions? You may like to discuss these with your sub-editors, friends and colleagues.

- 1) Please use the small "l" and NOT the capital I when having the ordinary numerals typed. Some typewriters do not have a numeral "one" on their key-boards so the small, or lower-case, "l" should be used. Any book on typewriting instruction will confirm this. Have a look through them at your public library. The capital, or upper case "I" is used for Roman numerals as in, say, Division III, VI, IX & etc., Mixing Roman and Arabic numerals as in, say, 1981 is wrong. Doesn't 1981 look right? The Club Match results (page 6) all had Roman I's, which was unfortunate.
- 2) Please do put a serial number on the new issue of the Bulletin this month. I would suggest:- "Vol. 1, No. 2 (new series), Nov. 1981". I did you a long screed on previous Bulletin issues some time ago. It does make reference to back issues easier. For example, "A says "Did you see it in the last Bulletin?". "B" (who hasn't seen one for months) replies "Which one is that?"
- 3) I did think you would have had a short "Editorial", or introduction, or Notes from the Editor, or something similar. Items in it:- such as your "deadline date" for receiving news, the importance of Match results and League Tabulations, notes on your editorial policy & etc., Indeed, put in it anything that is important to you as Editor, or mention anything that will make your life easier, i.e. your difficulties.

Please do not think that I am being hyper-critical. It is just that I really want there to be no criticism about your really worthwhile efforts over the first issue.

Pat Walkins

I am writing to you, to advise you of a change in the Secretariat of our club:- Lichfield & District.

A letter from the Secretary of Cannock Chess Club

We have been forced to withdraw our team from Div. 5 and we have organised with the approval of Graham Humphreys that Brewood can take over our fixtures which means very little disruption because of the loss of a team.

I have enclosed Brewoods details and whilst I will personally contact the clubs concerned, would be grateful if you could put it in the Bulletin.

Staffordshire 11 had white on the odd numbered boards. No Vice-Captain made life difficult with selection from the South. One player not turning up gave my first default as Captain. Otherwise, it was a very comfortable win with the result never in doubt. The players now tied to the seconds are:- M. Haywood, A.R. Whitehead, S. Terleckis, M.J. Hall, L. Price, W. Clark, L. Staunton

Howard Staunton changed from a career as a drama critic to chess at the age of 30 and soon became the leading player in London.

In 1841 he founded the "Chess Players Chronicle" and from 1844 onward he had a chess column in the London Illustrated News.

In 1851 he organised the first International Chess Tournament ever and was confidently expected to win it. The winner however was Anderssen. Later Staunton retired from competitive chess but not from journalism, and he continued to exert great influence in chess affairs.

When Howard Staunton died in 1874 W.N. Potter felt it his duty to pen the following lines in the City of London Chess Magazine:

"What was Staunton as a man? An old maxim has it that we must speak nothing but good of the dead. That may be all very well for epitaph writers, whose trade is to engrave lies on marble, but, for ourselves, we repudiate any such doctrine, considering it to be ethically unsound. Persons who wish to leave a character behind them free from reproach should earn it, and failing to do so, are justly open to the censure of the living. Praise given to all is rendered to none, and is, therefore a robbery of those entitled to it. We have very little hesitation in saying that, in our opinion, the deceased often acted, not only with single lack of generosity, but also with gross unfairness towards those whom he disliked, or from whom he had suffered defeat, or whom he imagined likely to stand between him and the sun. His attacks...were often conducted in a manner not at all consistent with a truthful spirit; nor were his innuendoes concerning Morphy otherwise than an utterly unworthy means of getting out of an engagement."

The writer hopes he may never have to conceive it his duty to pen similar lines. Staunton was undoubtedly a chess bully of the square-headed, bull-necked type, and English chess was the sweeter and the cleaner for his passing. He was always treading upon somebody's toes, always making himself obnoxious and objectionable. The following paragraph characteristic of the man, gave great offence:

"That preposterous custom of engaging an ignorant foreigner to edit Chess in an English newspaper makes us ridiculous where ever the game is known. Indeed the practice if not checked will shortly give to some half-dozen refugees a complete monopoly of English periodical Chess. You have no conception of the exertions these fellows have been making to get Chess into their hands."

No player of his time was more universally disliked.

To: All Members,

I was asked why we had to pay Corporation Tax, also, could we avoid paying the Tax in future?.

The reason why the League has to pay Corporation Tax was explained to me by the Inspector, as follows:-

"Income and Corporation Taxes Act, 1970. Section 526 (5) extends the received meaning of the word 'Company' so as to include (with certain exceptions such as Partnerships and Local Authorities), any body corporate, or unincorporated association".

Therefore, we are taxed 40% on the interest from our Deposit Account.

The Inspector stated further, in his letter:- "whether the making of a corporation tax assessment each year will be a cost-effective exercise will depend on the amount of interest credited to the Deposit Account".

This seems a very helpful comment from the Taxman. Do you not agree.

Thus, it seems to me that we should only keep about £50 in the Deposit Account, so that the 40% interest on that sum would hardly be worth collecting!

And now to more serious matters:-

- 1) In spite of my note on page 6 of the first issue of the new series of the Bulletin, wrong amounts to cover the Adjudication Fees are still being sent to me.
- 2) At the time of writing (9.11.81) I have heard nothing from the following Clubs:- Bushbury, Cannock, G.K.N., John Thompson, Mercia, Perton, Rock Kipping, Rugeley, Telford and W. M. Police. Will Club Secretaries please remind their Treasurers?

Tony Miles

18 year old Mark Haywood who is a regular top board member of the Cannock Chess Club 'A' team and an experienced county player, scored a very impressive and popular win in a recent Simultaneous Display organised by Cannock Chess Club.

The display was given by Mr. A.J. Miles, who is an International Grand Master as well as being Britain's Number 1 player. He took on 28 players from clubs in the Wolverhampton and District Chess League and finished up with 27 wins and just the one defeat.

He made a very good impression upon everybody by his quiet, gentlemanly and good natured attitude, especially where the juniors were concerned, and for pointing out errors or better moves after the games had finished.

Introducing Tony Miles, Club Chairman Mr. J. Lucas said that his record in competitive chess was very good and that only that week he had arrived back in this country after winning a tournament abroad with a score of 9-9. He also went on to thank all the players who had turned up and supported the event and especially the management of Butler Foundries for allowing the use of their office block to stage the event.

His son Igor is imprisoned in a Siberian labour camp for refusing military service on the grounds that it would make him ineligible to emigrate for at least 10 years. His wife had been allowed to visit their son a few days before the match, presumably to witness the sorry state he was in. She was then encouraged to telephone Korchnoi in the hope that she would convey the sad news of their sons pitiful condition. On the eve of the match the Russians released a 12 page attack on Korchnoi. They called him, among other things, "a petty calculating huckster" who had deserted his family. The Russian strategy may have worked, for how else could one account for Korchnoi's dismal start to the match, losing 3 out of the first 4 matches. It certainly wasn't through any inspired play by Karpov.

Korchnoi once again had our own Grand Master Michael Stean as one his seconde. Also included in his entourage was a physical training instructor and two members of the Andand Marg Sect, the main one of which is an American girl Victoria Sheppard, known as Didi, who has been described as Korchnoi's guru. "Didi has a wonderful talent for making people believe in themselves" says Michael Stean. "Her sole purpose is to guard Viktor's Morale". It would seem that her special talents deserted her at about the same time Korchnoi's morale did. Korchnoi jibes Karpov with phrases like "He wants to become a government functionary" and he regularly refers to him as "the Jailer" because he blames him directly for his family's plight. He points out that Karpov had enough influence with the Soviet Authorities to get his family out of Russia. Surely it would be humiliating for Karpov to win the championship against an opponent who was under such strain. "He is working class, 150 per cent Russian, and he knows how to appear submissive and humble" said Korchnoi at a press conference in Merano. "I am playing in handcuffs" he declared emotionally "In every game Karpov has two pieces more".

Korchnoi wore special reflective spectacles to avoid the piercing stare of Karpov. They never acknowledge each other at the chess board or go through with the customary hand shakes before and after each game, Korchnoi had however been warned for speaking to Karpov during a game and threatened with a fine. Apparently he said something like "keep still you sniffing little worm" in his native tongue. All good, clean, honest fun.

The prize money amounted to £145,000 for the winner, Karpov, and about £82,000 for Karchnoi. With his share of the money Karpov will give some of it, as a spontaneous gesture, to the Soviet State. Informed sources reckon that the going rate for spontaneous gestures is two-thirds.

Karpov sent a telegram to President Brezhnev informing him that he had retained his world title and he thanked the Soviet leader for all his support.

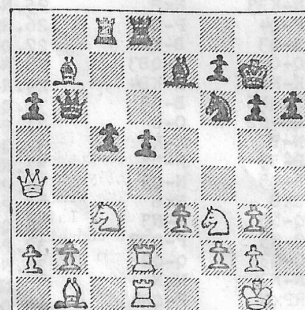

A selection of games

Game 1 Korchnoi began where he left off in Bagio City, playing the same opening as the final game there three years ago. Karpov had suffered one of his rare defeats at the hands of V. Hort only a few weeks before in this same variation. Korchnoi blundered on move twenty four, when he overlooked the strong reply 24.... P-Q5. The last Dozen moves were played in a desperate time scramble by both players.

SIMULTANEOUS DISPLAY

I have been offered the services of Anatoly Lein, the American based Russian Grandmaster, to give a display after playing at Hasting's. The display will be on Friday January 15th at a venue yet to be fixed (any offers). The cost per board will be £6.00. The display will be open to any person who wishes to play and you are asked to send me your name etc. I shall contact any players later with details of venue etc.

One way to raise your fee is to get your family and friends to sponsor you at so much per move. If you wish to do this send me word and I will send you a form.

Game 18 This was agony for Korchnoi, some good play from the champion had him in all sorts of trouble from about move eighteen, when Korchnoi chose KR-N1. The consensus of opinion was that 18.....KR-Q1, contesting the open Queens file, would have been better. Korchnoi had only three minutes left to make his last seven moves.

ADJOURNMENTS

A number of clubs are making a bad habit of failing to agree a date for a game to be resumed before leaving the home club room.

To put down the last date the game can be played by, on the match card after saying you will contact your opponent, is not correct. You have 28 days to finalize the game and send me the result. This should be plenty of time. May I point out you can always play your game at some venue other than your club room.
